ACT ONE

SCENE ONE

A school performance of A Midsummer Night's Dream is coming to a close. The Mendelssohn soundtrack blares from a tinny loudspeaker. Kids dressed as fairies scurry about in garish light. The music ends and the fairies strike a tableau. One of them, TOM, steps forward and addresses the audience.

TOM: If we shadows have offended,
    Think but this, and all is mended,
    That you have but slumbered here
    While these visions did appear.
    And this weak and idle theme,
    No more yielding but a dream,
    Gentles, do not reprehend.
    If you pardon, we will mend.
    And, as I am an honest Puck,
    If we have unearned luck
    Now to scrape the serpent's tongue,
    We will make amends ere long;
    Else the Puck a liar call.
    So, good night unto you all.
    Give me your hands, if we be friends,
    And Robin shall restore amends.

Music again, the FAIRIES scurry about and the curtain closes.
It opens again and they are caught unready. They form a line and bow a few times, the curtain closes again and they wander off. ROY comes to the curtains. They open a little and he addresses the audience.

ROY: Well, I'm sure you all enjoyed the little show tonight. What a lot of little Chips Rafferties we've got here in our own school. Now there are a few people I'd like to say a few words of thanks to before we go tonight. Allan and Betty Shirlaw for providing the timber and so on at cost to build the settings. Joy Samuels and the Art Department for painting it all and making it look so terrific. Seymours for providing the cordials at half time. Mrs Walker for the luscious cakes, well done Lois. Mrs Hutton, Mrs Cooper, Mrs Lummis and Mrs Papa ... Papalapa ... Papalax ... oh well, I'm sure she knows who I mean, ha ha ha, for making the outfits ... Finally Miss Latrobe, the person responsible for getting the whole show together you've seen here tonight, as well as getting our debating team into the quarter finals. Thank you, Miss Latrobe. Well, that about wraps it up so thank you all for coming and have a safe and happy Christmas and best wishes for nineteen-sixty-eight. Thank you.

[He moves away, then remembers something.]
Oh, and one more thing. A message from Charlie. Please watch the flowering beds as you leave the school, we lost quite a few at prize-giving night. Thank you.

SCENE TWO

Backstage. TOM and MEG.

TOM: You going away tomorrow?
MEG: We're leaving really early.
TOM: Well ... have a good time.
MEG: Where are you going?
TOM: Up the coast. Some beach.
MEG: Have a good time.
TOM: Bound to.
MEG: See you.
TOM: Yeah ... see you in pictures.
MEG: You too.
TOM: No thanks.
MEG: You were really good in the play.
TOM: Bull.
MEG: You were!
TOM: Cut it out. I'll get a fat head.
MEG: My olds are waiting.
TOM: Anyway, I got this for you. As a memento of the play.
MEG: Thanks.

TOM: It was a real laugh being in the play with you.
MEG: No-o ... .
TOM: It was! So I got you something as a token of my appreciation.
MEG: What is it?
TOM: If you open it up you might find out. It's a piece of junk, actually. Actually I nicked it. But it's the thought that counts.
MEG: You nicked it?
TOM: Actually, I got a night job and slogged me guts out for ten years to pay for it.
MEG: A brooch.
TOM: A mere bauble.
MEG: It's really nice. That's really nice of you.
TOM: Oh, stop before you start sobbing.
MEG: I really like it.
TOM: It's from the bottom of my heart, actually.
MEG: I wish I'd got you something.
TOM: I have some beautiful memories.
MEG: Oh yuck.
TOM: Sick, eh?
MEG: It was good fun, though. Pity it was only for one night.
Fancy doing it night after night like in America. Plays go on for years there. London too. Wouldn't you get sick of it?
TOM: Depends who else was in it. Be great if you hated everyone's guts.
MEG: But then it'd only be the same as a proper job.
TOM: What are you going to be when you grow up?
MEG: An engine driver. You?
TOM: I'll wait and see.
MEG: I'd better be going. Thanks for the brooch.
TOM: It matches your eyes.
MEG: Yellow?
TOM: Joke
MEG: Ha ha.
TOM: Sorry.
MEG: Well ... .
TOM: The olds.
MEG: Have a good Christmas.
TOM: Don’t go yet.
MEG: Why?
TOM: This is fun.
MEG: What is?
TOM: Trying to think of things to say.
MEG: We haven’t done the weather yet.
TOM: Do you really like the brooch?
MEG: Yep.
TOM: Good.
MEG: I really like it.
TOM: It was either jewellery or perfume. But it’s hard to buy perfume for someone you don’t know very well. You need to know their personal chemical make up. I could have got something on spec and it mightn’t have worked on you and you’d have to put it on and stunk like a dead dog. You wouldn’t have been able to wash it off, either. You have to wait till something like that fades. You wouldn’t be so nice about me in the play then, eh? My name’d be mud. That’s why I went for jewellery. Safer. Better bet. Actually I asked around a few places. Got a bit of advice. Shop girls and that.
MEG: And they said jewellery?
TOM: Most of them. They said I should opt for the jewellery. A few suggested some perfume. Very subtle stuff. Couldn’t actually smell it. One of them tried some on and I was halfway down her neck before any smell registered.
Pointless.
MEG: Well . . . I still wish I’d got you something.
TOM: Bottle of gin would’ve been nice.
MEG: Oh.
TOM: Or a Harley Davidson.
MEG: Is he a poet?
TOM: It’s a bike.
MEG: I knew that.
TOM: Poet! Why would I want a poet?
MEG: Maybe you read poetry.
TOM: Me? Come on! Me?
MEG: You might. You’re pretty . . .
TOM: Deep?

MEG: You’re pretty quiet.
TOM: Soulful?
MEG: Still waters run deep. My father’s always saying that.
TOM: Still waters stink.

[GWEN and JIM come in.]
GWEN: You were supposed to hurry, not stand round yapping. There are a million things to do. I’ll have to do it all, I expect.
TOM: ‘ll met by moonlight’.
GWEN: I beg your pardon? Are you a friend of Margaret’s?
TOM: I didn’t know you were a friend of this boy’s, Margaret.
MEG: Not really.
TOM: No, not really.
MEG: Until the play.
TOM: Yeah. Until the play, that is.
MEG: Did you like the play, Dad?
JIM: It was . . . lovely, yes.
GWEN: What did you have to do Shakespeare for? Why couldn’t you have done a musical? A bit of singing. All that talking! And we couldn’t see a thing. The people in front kept hopping up and down, up and down to see. We couldn’t see a blessed thing. We just managed to see a bit of the queen’s crown. And there were these kids near us, why you’d bring kiddies to stuff like this I do not know, but — muck-up? I could’ve throttled them. Little buggers. But whose idea was it to do Shakespeare? Very silly choice if you ask me.
JIM: You looked lovely though, Mags. And you’ll be our next Chips Rafferty, eh, son?
TOM: Don’t hold your breath.
GWEN: We can’t spend all night here. Not if you two want any sort of holiday. Say your goodnights, Margaret. Have you got the keys?
JIM: Keys? I thought I gave them to you.
GWEN: No, I gave them to you. To get the camera out of the car. Why, I do not know. We couldn’t see a thing. We were so far back you couldn’t get a photo of anything. You always have to bring it. But you kept the keys.
JIM: Did I?
AWAY

Gwen: Yes.
Jim: I don’t think so. They’re not on me.
Gwen: They must be. Trouser pockets.
Jim: No, no I’m sure you still have them. They’re not there.
Gwen: I do not believe this. I know I gave them to you. I remember. I gave you the camera and then the keys. I said, ‘Here’s your stupid camera, it’ll be a waste bringing it’ and I handed you the keys. Oh honestly.
Jim: Don’t worry. Don’t start to worry.
Gwen: I know I haven’t got them.
Jim: I ... no I haven’t. I don’t remember. But we’ll find them. Just don’t get upset.
Gwen: Well, where are they?!
Jim: Don’t get upset.
Gwen: I have not got them.
[She tips the contents of her handbag on the floor.]
There! Are they there? Can you see a set of keys? I can’t. Can anyone see a set of keys?
Jim: Well, they must be around. We’ll find them. Don’t get upset.
Gwen: Look! There are no keys there.
[She picks things up and shakes them in the bag again.]
Gwen: I did not have the keys. Did I? Now my eyes are stinging. I can hardly see. It hurts. I need a Bex.
Roy: Any good shots?
Jim: A couple, I think.
Gwen: Of course not. We were so far back. Hullo. We thought we’d lost the keys.
[Awkward pause.]
Roy: So what do you think of our little Chips Rafferties, eh? Proud mums and dads?
Gwen: I wish they’d done a musical. My head.
Roy: It ... er ... it was hot in that hall. We might see the P. and C. about some air conditioning next year. Very stuffy. It’s a pity they weren’t selling something a bit stronger than cordial. Made a killing.
[Pause.]
Very stuffy. When you said that bit about you have slumbered here you were certainly hitting the nail on the head. Not that I was bored. No. It was a good night out.
[Pause.]
Off away, are you?
Jim: In the morning.
Gwen: If we ever get a start. [To Coral] Did you enjoy the play?
[Coral stares at her for a moment then looks away.]
We were right at the back. Wasn’t the music lovely?
[Pause.]
Have you been well?
[Coral doesn’t respond. Harry and Vic come in.]
Harry: Here he is, Vic! He’s here. There you are.
Vic: Where is he? There you are. Ahhhhh, well done. There’s my boy. Weren’t you marvellous? You were marvellous.
Harry: Congratulations, son. A real Laurence Olivier you are.
Vic: Oh, it was marvellous. Wasn’t it a lovely show?
Gwen: Oh, yes.
Jim: Very nice.
Vic: You looked so wicked, Tom.
Harry: I said to your mother, our Tom’s got a bit of hobgoblin in him. Where did he get that then, eh?
[Harry and Vic laugh.]
Vic: But we did enjoy it. Very much. You should be proud, Mr Baker. This has done the school a lot of good. Brought a lot of happiness.
Roy: Oh, yes, yes. It has been a successful evening.
Harry: You’re not tired, son?
Tom: Full of beans.
Harry: You sure?
Vic: Leave him. This is his hour of triumph. [To Meg] You were lovely too.
Meg: Thanks.
VIC: Wasn’t she lovely? You must be proud.
JIM: Yes, we are.
Gwen: Oh, yes.
VIC: Oh, it did us good.
HARRY: What a way to end the year. Marvellous.
ROY: You going away?
HARRY: Oh ... we’re going to drive a bit. See what we find.
ROY: You seen much of this country yet? How long have you been out here?
VIC: Eight years. Not a lot of it, no, not yet.
HARRY: We will, though.
Gwen: You caravanning?
HARRY: Ohhh ... no. Not exactly. We’ve got a tent.
JIM: Oh, a tent. Terrific. I miss the old tent sometimes.
Gwen: We’ve got a new caravan. Everything in it you could want.
JIM: If you need a couple of stretchers ...
HARRY: It’s a small tent. We just put it up against the car.
Gwen: A lean-to?
HARRY: That’s it.
Gwen: Ohhhhh.
ROY: Well, we’ve got a plane to catch. The Gold Coast.
VIC: Oh, lovely.
Gwen: The Gold Coast ... well. You’ll have a lovely time.
ROY: We’ll see you all next year. Last year for you two, eh?
A good Christmas, then.
ALL: Goodnight. Safe journey. Cheerio. etc.
[ROY and CORAL go.]
Gwen: She looks awful, poor woman. Her son, you know.
VIC: Yes. We heard.
Gwen: Poor woman.
HARRY: Time we were in bed, I think.
Gwen: Have a lovely time in your ... tent.
VIC: We’ll be fine. Won’t we?
TOM: I think I’ll walk home.
HARRY: You got a jumper?
VIC: He’s all right. Don’t be too long. Goodnight.
Scene Three

Outside. Coral, alone.

Coral: When that woman woke up and saw that donkey at her feet I thought my heart would break. I had to wipe away tears. To wake up and find something you want so badly. Even an animal. And then she woke up again and saw her husband and loved him. That boy! In that blue light the shadows on his face and neck were like bruises. He looked so sick yet so wonderful, so white, so cold and burning. ‘What angel wakes me from my flowery bed?’ I kept saying it over and over in the dark. All these children, having fun, playing and me sitting there in the dark wiping away tears. I could hardly watch them. Their legs and arms painted gold. And that boy’s hair, so black. And his smile. ‘What angel wakes me from my flowery bed?’ Is it better for them to die like that? Looking like gods? Burning, gold, white. What’s that word they always say in those plays? Alas?

[She sighs.]

Alas.

[Roy comes in.]

Roy: I thought I told you to wait in the car.

Coral: I was hot. Just walking.

Roy: Let’s get home.

Coral: I’m hot.

Roy: We’ll have a drink when we get home.

Coral: I was just walking.

[They go.]
HARRY: A few weeks just with ourselves. Just with you. It’ll be good.
TOM: It’ll be terrific. I’ve looked forward to it. Ever since you suggested it I’ve wanted to go. That day in the hospital and you brought in the tent and put it up in the ward. I couldn’t wait for summer to come.
HARRY: When you have your own kids you’ll know what I’m talking about.
TOM: Come on, Dad, you’re getting tired.
HARRY: When you’ve got your own family —
TOM: Do you want a drink or not?
HARRY: Put the jug on.
TOM: No. I want something cold.
HARRY: It’s not going to be a flash holiday.
TOM: I don’t want to go to St. Tropez.
HARRY: But it will be fun. Most of the time.
TOM: It’ll be a laugh a minute.
HARRY: And even if it does get a bit dull, a bit boring, even if you do get a bit fed up, you know a bit . . . pissed off . . .
TOM: Shit, Dad, where did you pick that up?
HARRY: Even if it is slow, if you could try and still have a good time, look like you’re having a good time. I’m asking this for your mother. It’s for her. Let her see you really enjoying yourself, having a terrific time.
TOM: I won’t have to try.
HARRY: I’m not asking you to lie.
TOM: I wouldn’t. But I won’t need to.
HARRY: But . . . well, you are a bit of a Laurence Olivier. We were very proud tonight. I glanced sideways at your mother at one point and her face was glowing, it was shining. She was very happy.
TOM: You’ll be tired tomorrow. You’ll fall asleep at the wheel. Then where will we be? Some holiday.
HARRY: What about that cup of tea?
TOM: I think I’ll go to bed.
HARRY: Don’t get too tired, will you?
TOM: That’s why I’m going to bed.
HARRY: We love you a lot.
TOM: You shouldn’t worry about me. Now hit the sack.

HARRY: Have you got your mother a present?
TOM: I got three. They get bigger and better.
HARRY: I’ll see you in the morning.

GWEN and MEG.

GWEN: Margaret? Do you want these flippers to go?
MEG: Yes.
GWEN: Well, do you think they’ll pack themselves? Do you think holidays happen by themselves?
MEG: No.
GWEN: Well, get those pillow slips. And I can’t see any beach towels here. I hope no one expects to take any of my good towels down onto the beach. Did you hear me?
MEG: Yes. I’ll get some now.
GWEN: Is that box of canned food out at the car? It should go in the boot.
MEG: [off, calling] Mum wants to know if the box of groceries has gone out.
JIM: [off, calling] Yes. It’s here.
MEG: Yes, it’s there.
GWEN: Miracle of miracles. My head will split. Look how late it is. We won’t get enough sleep. And we won’t get away before seven. Every lunatic on earth will be on the roads in the morning. [Calling] I said every lunatic on earth will be on the roads tomorrow. And we’ll be caught in the middle of it. [Back to MEG] I wish some people did a bit more, with a bit more preparation. Instead of leaving it all to the last second. People think holidays happen all by themselves.
MEG: I think you should go to bed now.
GWEN: Ha! We’d still be here on New Year’s Day. No, I’ll keep going. I may as well.
MEG: But your head’s killing you.
GWEN: I’ll have a Bex before bed.
MEG: But why not stop, rest, relax? We’ll get there.
GWEN: Have you got the Thermos organised yet?
MEG: I’ll do it, don’t worry.
GWEN: I may as well be talking to a lot of brick walls. And what have you packed in the way of clothes? You’re old enough to cope with that. I suppose you are. It’s up to you. Just don’t come running to me when you’ve got nothing to wear. I told you two weeks ago, as soon as your exams were finished and over with, to start getting your things together.
MEG: Yes, I’ve done it. I’ve got a bag. Why can’t you relax?
GWEN: Don’t take on that tone of voice. You’ll end up a snide miss and no one can stand that. Everyone does what they have to. If we’re going to have any sort of reasonable holiday we’re going to have to pay for it. We’re paying for it now, by spending all night packing up to go.
MEG: But it doesn’t seem much fun.
GWEN: Fun. Now there’s a good word. Fun. It doesn’t seem much fun.
MEG: You aren’t enjoying it. Have you ever enjoyed it?
GWEN: Why don’t you go and live with your friend for a while, then, if you want to have fun all the time? They look like they always have fun. Nothing to show for it, of course, but if it’s fun that you’re after then you go right ahead. This case won’t close.
MEG: I’ll sit on it. [They struggle with the case until it is shut.]
GWEN: My head is spinning.
MEG: Go to bed.
[JIM comes in.]
Make her go to bed.
JIM: Is that the lot?
MEG: Just this case.
JIM: We’re ready to roll, then.
GWEN: Ha! There’ll be something. There always is.
MEG: Go to bed.
GWEN: I’m going to have a powder, then I’ll be off. Take that case out tonight.
[She goes.]

MEG: When you’re married to someone, do you ever wish they were dead?
JIM: Please don’t be hard towards your mother.
MEG: If you spend a long time with one person don’t you ever wish you could be rid of them?
JIM: You mustn’t expect too much from her.
MEG: Do you expect much from her?
JIM: No.
MEG: Do you expect anything from her?
JIM: She is very worried about that boy in the play. He hasn’t got a hold over you, has he? Tell me if he has.
MEG: He doesn’t have a hold over me.
JIM: He’s never been around you, all these years of school, then suddenly you’re in this play and all we hear is Tom this, Tom that, Tom said, Tom thinks. We notice.
MEG: You worry too much.
JIM: Your mother thinks I don’t worry enough.
MEG: I’m not having a baby.
JIM: I know that.
MEG: That’s what you’re really asking.
JIM: Not only that. You might be drawn away, pulled away from us. That would be very upsetting.
MEG: I won’t stay here forever.
JIM: But you mustn’t go at the wrong time, with the wrong person.
MEG: Wrong?
JIM: Don’t abandon your mother.
MEG: I won’t.
JIM: Everything has been so good up ’til now, everything has gone so well. Don’t just walk away.
MEG: I don’t understand. Mum has a great story she tells once a year or so. About growing up in a country town. About all her brothers and sisters and her parents. How one day she realised she was expected to stay at home forever and look after them. She knew then she had to get out. So she packed her bags and got a train. She was eighteen, I think, or nineteen. She left. Like that, in a minute. She never went back for eight years. They wouldn’t speak to her. She got married and they came down for the wedding and stayed a couple of days. Then you saw them once a year if they were lucky. When I was born, maybe twice a year. She never writes, never rings. They could die and she wouldn’t find out for months. Isn’t that wanting to abandon someone? Wasn’t she pulled away? Did you stay?

JIM: Life was so much harder.

MEG: You got out. You packed up and hit the road for years.
You tell a story too. You got out. You were pulled away.

JIM: It was money. It was bread. Work. The world was full of people walking around the countryside looking for something to eat, all thinking about the day they could stop walking. We all did it. Your mother did it. When we met we thought about it together. We lived in rubbish tips. We shared rooms with other people. Everyone did. And we all planned. We planned our time. We waited. We stuck to our plans like the Bible. And we’re getting there. That was a time of complete madness when we think back. There was no order, no plan. We got through one day, then we got through the next, then the next. My plans were for me, but your mother ... hers are for all of us. You have no idea how hard she has stuck to them, how she has fought to get where we are. And her plans are the way we have to go.
It’s as if she can see into the future. We have to support her, follow her, stick to her plans.

MEG: I want to be certain like that.

JIM: And you are so important to your mother’s plans.

MEG: But I’m not.

JIM: I wish we’d said no to that play.

MEG: If I’d played volley ball I’d still feel like this. I don’t think you should have given in all the time. I think you’ve been cheated.

JIM: No.

MEG: I don’t think anyone should give in for the sake of peace and quiet. I won’t.

JIM: I’d like you to promise to be patient. Just a bit longer, a few more years, let things take their course.

MEG: If we don’t get up early we’ll be in a lot of trouble.

JIM: Good girl.

MEG: I’m not. I’m only tired.

SCENE THREE

ROY and CORAL.

ROY: Two things!

CORAL: Two. Yes?

ROY: Listen to me.

CORAL: The whole world is listening to you.

ROY: Just two things.

CORAL: Why don’t you help me choose an evening dress to take?

ROY: I’m getting sick of this act.

CORAL: This one?

ROY: Two things. One. My position at school. I can’t go on turning up at school functions with you if you’re going to behave like a ghost. You wander around with that smile, staring into the distance, not seeing anyone, ignoring people.

CORAL: I don’t ignore anyone.

ROY: Just let me speak. You ignore people —

CORAL: I don’t.

ROY: You stare at them like there’s something wrong with them, just stare and smile and say nothing.

CORAL: But I’m not ignoring them. I can’t think of anything to say. I would never ignore anyone.

ROY: Don’t split hairs, Coral. I don’t care how you justify it, you behave in a way that’s too ... weird for my liking.
I can feel people watching us walk away thinking, how much longer before he has to lock the poor ratbag wife up?

CORAL: People don’t think like that.

ROY: Well, you’re even weirder than I thought if you think like that. It has to stop. I can’t keep moving school to stop you going right over the edge. There’s only so much compassionate ground the Department can keep on giving me. You’ll have to take stock, come back to reality.
CORAL: I mightn’t like it there.
ROY: Try it for a week, for Christ’s sake. Two. Second thing.
I miss the boy too. I feel it. I suffer for it. Will you allow me that? Could you let me in on the sadness just a little?
Because Christ I feel it.
CORAL: It’s everywhere, isn’t it? In the air we breathe.
ROY: But. But. We are not the only ones. We are not the first people in the history of the world to lose a son in war. There is a time for being grief stricken, there’s a time for weeping and wailing and carrying on and beating your breast, but it comes to an end. It has to. Otherwise the whole world would simply stop. Jesus, Coral, in the last war practically every family lost someone or knew someone who died. They managed. They picked themselves up and went on. That’s what history is, people picking themselves up, pull —ing themselves together and going on. We can’t stop.
CORAL: Do you still think I look like Kim Novak?
ROY: Jesus Christ.
CORAL: You did once.
ROY: There’s no point packing clothes. We won’t go.
CORAL: We need a break. We need a change.
ROY: I don’t need a break with you. I can stay home and read a book and be more relaxed. I’m not wasting time and money on airfare and room service if you’re going to spend all your time staring at people.
CORAL: I’ll be good! I’ll improve. Watch me get better.
ROY: I can’t take it, Coral.
CORAL: I won’t think about death, about —
ROY: I’m not asking you to forget, I won’t forget.
CORAL: I’ll be calm, interested, aware of people. I’ll look after myself. I’ll get up at a proper time. I’ll have fun.
ROY: You can sit by a pool all day if you like. But like a normal human being.
CORAL: We won’t mention helicopters, or jungles, or mines — ROY: I’ll tear up the tickets. I’ll give them away. I’ll send someone else who’ll enjoy it.
CORAL: I’ll be silent on all controversial topics. Will that do?
I won’t bring up anything upsetting or worrying. Death, war, loss —

ROY: Be reasonable. Give it a rest.
CORAL: I won’t blame anyone.
ROY: Please, please stop doing it to me. I didn’t send him.
He had to go. Would you rather not pay the price for the life we have? We could just lie down in the street, defenceless, and let whoever wanted to come and take what we have. Would that have been better for you? Would you have been happy then? Jesus, Coral, you’re too selfish. We were picked out to pay. I can’t help that. We’ve paid. I can’t bring him back. So we have a duty to go on with what we have. Maybe we should even be proud? We’re living in a country with one of the highest standards of living on earth and we have shown ourselves willing to defend that standard.
CORAL: Shhhh, Roy ... Shhhh, relax. We need a break. A rest. Rest and recreation. Let’s get away. Just the two of us.
ROY: Coral ... be like you were.
CORAL: I will, I will.
ROY: Smile.
CORAL: I will. I’ll be as good as gold. I’ll be like Kim Novak.
I’ll purr like a kitten.
ROY: Sweetheart ...
CORAL: I don’t think this dress is the right one.
ROY: Coral ...
CORAL: I know.
ROY: Look at me.
CORAL: There.
ROY: You remind me of Kim Novak.
CORAL: You remind me ... but I mustn’t say.
[Silence.]
We’ll have a wonderful, wonderful time.

SCENE FOUR

TOM and VIC.

VIC: I heard something. I thought we had burglars.
TOM: I was thirsty. I’m all right. I think I must be a bit excited. I can’t sleep.

VIC: I can’t sleep either.

[Silence.]

Have you packed everything you need?

TOM: I don’t want to take much.

VIC: It’s not going to be what you’d call a flash holiday. Just the basics.

TOM: Who needs St. Tropez?

VIC: But we’re going away.

TOM: And we’ll have a great time.

VIC: It won’t be much of a Christmas either, really. I wish I could give you a bike.

TOM: Bottle of gin’ll do.

VIC: Gin?

TOM: Sure. And a handkerchief.

VIC: You’ve guessed it then.

TOM: I hate surprises.

VIC: Your father will enjoy this trip.

TOM: We all will.

VIC: You’ll get bored. I know you. It doesn’t matter if you do.

TOM: I’ll have the time of my life.

VIC: But if you do get cheesed off … try and look like you’re having a real ball. You know?

TOM: I won’t have to try.

VIC: You can act, we all know that now. Maybe that’s what you’ll end up doing with yourself.

TOM: Who knows?

VIC: Who knows? But if you could just pretend a bit … if you have to, for your Dad.

TOM: I’ll do my best.

VIC: I hope you haven’t been extravagant for us.

TOM: Mink. Diamonds. A Rolls.

VIC: Well, we’ll use them ’til New Year then take them back.

TOM: You look tired, Mum.

VIC: Goodnight.

[She goes.]

TOM: ‘Sweet friends, to bed.’

ACT THREE

SCENE ONE

A Gold Coast Luxury Hotel.

Couples in their summer best dance a spectacular pre-dinner number.

CORAL comes in and watches them. When the music ends the others drift away. CORAL approaches a woman who has found herself alone for a moment.

CORAL: What a way to spend Christmas Eve.

WOMAN: Isn’t it lovely?

CORAL: You’re a very good dancer.

WOMAN: A bit rusty.

CORAL: That’s a lovely dress.

WOMAN: Thank you.

CORAL: Did you make it yourself?

WOMAN: No. Excuse me.

CORAL: Where did you buy it then?

WOMAN: In a shop. I’m looking for my husband.

CORAL: Did he buy it for you?

WOMAN: Yes he did.

CORAL: Oh, good.

WOMAN: Everyone’s going in to dinner.

CORAL: Isn’t the food here wonderful? It seems so extravagant. We’re so lucky to be living in such a rich country.

WOMAN: I suppose we are.

CORAL: There is a price that has to be paid, of course. And we should all be prepared to pay it. That’s if we’re prepared to enjoy this high standard of living.

WOMAN: Yes, I’m sure.

CORAL: Have you stayed here before?

WOMAN: Every year.

CORAL: We’ve never been to Queensland before. We usually tried to all go somewhere overseas for the Christmas holidays. Last year we didn’t. We got a house by the sea. I was a little worried about coming to such a big place. There are so many people staying here.
WOMAN: It’s packed. But we like it. Excuse me, I’m getting peckish.
CORAL: And do you get on with your husband when you’re on holidays.
WOMAN: Um ... yes.
CORAL: I asked because we get so used to seeing them in the evenings for a few hours and then we’re together for a fortnight, life can get a little fraught. What’s your name? I’m Coral.
WOMAN: Leonie.
CORAL: Oh, Leonie, isn’t it hard making contact with other people in this kind of place? Everyone’s enjoying themselves but, I don’t know, I feel it’s a bit forced, do you feel that? Are you really enjoying yourself? Or are you only pretending. To please your husband, perhaps?
WOMAN: [almost in tears] Why are you staring like that?
CORAL: If there were someone here who was in trouble would anyone know, would anyone take the trouble to find out, to try and help?
WOMAN: I’m not in any trouble.
CORAL: I’d like to be able to help someone if they were in some trouble. I mustn’t go on ignoring people. Apparently I do. I’ve become very withdrawn. But I’m much better now. That’s all over with, that part of my life is finished. I’ve learnt to start all over again. You have to in the end.
WOMAN: Please let me go.
CORAL: Do you have any children, Leonie?
WOMAN: No.
CORAL: Oh. Oh, well.
WOMAN: Two boys. Let me go, please, I want to go.
CORAL: Are they here with you?
WOMAN: They’ve gone away with some mates.
CORAL: Good. That’s a good idea. Don’t hang onto them.
WOMAN: Where’s your husband? Does he know where you are?
CORAL: He was having a shower. I got dressed and slipped out.
WOMAN: Why don’t you sit down over there? Wait for him. Over there.

CORAL: Oh, he’ll be hours. Let my buy you a drink. We’ll sit together and natter.
WOMAN: I can’t.
CORAL: Where are you from, Leonie?
WOMAN: If you don’t let me go I’ll call for help.
CORAL: You are in trouble.
[They struggle.]
WOMAN: [crying] I’m not. I want to go in. I’m hungry. Let me go.
CORAL: Leonie, please. It’s all right, calm down.
WOMAN: [calling] Frank! Frank! Help me. Please!
CORAL: What do you want to drink?
WOMAN: I want to go.
CORAL: I can see something’s wrong.
[The woman wrenches herself free. She retreats, sobbing.]
WOMAN: My husband has been sleeping with a twenty-year old girl. I know where she lives. I want to kill her. I’m going to have my dinner now. With my husband. Don’t speak to me again. I am going to have my dinner.
[She goes. A young man, RICK, has seen all this. Coral stalks about unhappily for a moment then notices him.]
RICK: I’m looking for my wife.
[Pause. Coral stares at him.]
That woman seemed a bit upset.
[Pause.]
You know her?
[Pause.]
Did she hurt you?
CORAL: [forcing herself to speak] She’s very unhappy.
RICK: I’d say so.
CORAL: You’ve lost your wife?
RICK: I think I’m in the dog house. All I wanted for lunch was hot dog. We were in the restaurant. She got a bit upset.
CORAL: Did she?
RICK: I should have had something flash. Steak Diane or something. Prawn cocktail.
CORAL: And you wanted a hot dog.
RICK: And a beer.
CORAL: Was she embarrassed?
RICK: A bit, I s’pose.
CORAL: You’d better go and have a good dinner then. Let’s have some lobster Thermidor.
RICK: She said she’d be in the ballroom. Wanted to be by herself. At least I got her pressie wrapped up.
CORAL: You’re on your honeymoon, aren’t you?
RICK: That’s right.
CORAL: I can see that.
RICK: Remind you of yours? Sorry, that wasn’t very nice.
CORAL: What’s your name?
RICK: Rick.
CORAL: Rick. On your honeymoon in this palace and your wife’s got the huff. It’s a wonderful place, isn’t it? Does your room have a view?
RICK: I think so.
CORAL: [laughing] You haven’t looked!
RICK: [embarrassed] Yeah, yeah, over the pool.
CORAL: I’ll bet you haven’t tried the pool either.
RICK: Have you?
CORAL: It’s always full of kids. It’s marvellous for them, though. They’re so lucky to have been born in this country.
RICK: We have such a high standard of living here.
CORAL: Looks like it.
RICK: There is a price that has ... [running out of conviction]
CORAL: and we all must ... you’d better hunt down your wife, Rick.
RICK: She’ll turn up when she’s ready.
CORAL: Go in and order some real dinner for her.
[He starts to go then stops.]
RICK: I think I’ll wait. I don’t like being in a room full of people I don’t know on my own. You know any of them?
CORAL: Oh, yes, we’re regulars here. I know so many people.
RICK: There’s a couple who are both very ill and not telling each other. Cancer, I think. Quite a few marriages on the rocks. A lot of them can’t stand their own kids. And a lot of the kids hate their parents. Leonie’s husband is having an affair. I know most of them, I think.
RICK: All these people.
CORAL: Quite a lot of them. We come here every year. Except last year. I wasn’t the best last year. I got a bit withdrawn. I was a bit fraught. But I’m over that now. I’m much better. Much, much better.
RICK: Susie wanted to come up here. I didn’t mind. But it’s a bit flash for a fitter and turner. Not really the place for me.
CORAL: A fitter and turner.
RICK: Just finished me apprenticeship. I waited ’til then to get married.
CORAL: You’re a sensible person.
RICK: You’ve got to think of the future.
CORAL: That’s right.
RICK: I was scared stiff I’d get called up. I missed out being a nasho by one number. It’s like a lottery, you see.
CORAL: Yes, I’ve heard about it.
RICK: They just pull the birthdates out of a hat, more or less. Before you know it you’ve won two years in the army. We all watched it on TV. Bit of a party. My month got closer and closer. I was sweating, drinking faster and faster and my day was coming up and it just missed. I nearly passed out when he called out the number after mine. Nearly fell on the floor. Two of me mates went.
CORAL: Did they?
RICK: Yep. Off to fight the Commos.
CORAL: In the jungle.
RICK: I s’pose. Christ I was scared.
CORAL: And you got married.
RICK: Yep.
CORAL: [laughing] Comparisons are odious.
RICK: Sorry?
CORAL: Marriage or the jungle.
RICK: Oh, right. Yeah.
CORAL: Or up in a helicopter. You see, I’m much better at communicating with others.
RICK: You are, that’s for sure ... CORAL: Do I remind you of anyone?
RICK: Ahhh. Dame Pattie?
CORAL: Well —
RIK: Was that the wrong thing to say?
CORAL: No, no.
RIK: I don’t know what’s happened to Susie.
CORAL: You would have made a good soldier. Footslogger.
RIK: No fear.
CORAL: You’d have made it into the army very easily. You would have breezed through the medical. The uniform would have fitted you like a glove. Your hair might have needed a bit of a trim.
RIK: Bit of a Beatle.
CORAL: It’s a wonderful colour. So thick.
RIK: I like her a lot. I’ve known her since school. She was very keen to get married. She’s really nice. You’d like her.
She’s a bit shy, but. When we’ve saved up for a house we might think about kids. ’Til then.
[ROY rushes in, his jacket half on. He stops and gets his breath.]
ROY: I wondered where you’d got to.
CORAL: Rick’s on his honeymoon.
ROY: Congratulations, son. [To CORAL] I told you to wait for me.
CORAL: I’ve been having a terrific time. We’ve been talking about the standard of living in this country.
ROY: They’re serving dinner.
CORAL: We can’t leave Rick.
RIK: I’ll wait for Susie.
CORAL: Sit with us when you come in.
ROY: [leading her away] He’s on his honeymoon, darling. Let him sit where he likes.
CORAL: [to ROY] I’m doing well, aren’t I? I’ve started taking such an interest in the world around me. Have a lovely Christmas morning, Rick.
[RIK watches them go, checks his watch and waits for his wife.]

SCENE TWO

A tent and caravan city.
Gwen carries a twelve-inch fake Christmas tree.

GWEN: If you want to have a Christmas you’d better get started now so we can get it over with. Hurry up. I don’t intend spending half the day sitting around waiting for people to open their presents.
[MEG enters.]
Everyone else has been up for hours and got the thing over with. Look, they’re all down on the beach already. Most of the boats have gone out. There’ll be no fish left out there for us. [Calling] You kids there! Get those bikes away from the tent ropes! Go on! You’ll fall off! You’ll end up with a tent peg through your skull! Won’t be much of a Christmas then, will it? Go on! [Back to MEG] Why would you give a kiddy a bike in a camping ground? They should think about what they give their children for Christmas.
And the salt water’ll rust them in a week. And on Christmas morning you can’t walk to the shower block without being mown down by a whole pack of scooters and bikes.
[Jim enters.]
JIM: Has anyone seen a little carton?
GWEN: No.
JIM: A cardboard carton about so big.
GWEN: What carton?
JIM: One of those cartons you bring home from the supermarket. I kept it from going out in the garbage.
GWEN: I haven’t seen it.
JIM: Not when we unpacked?
GWEN: No.
JIM: It must be somewhere.
GWEN: What do you need a cardboard carton for?
MEG: What was in it?
JIM: Oh ... something.
GWEN: You packed the car.
JIM: I was sure I left it with the cases.
GWEN: Well, I didn’t see any cartons, cardboard or otherwise.
JIM: Don’t tell me it didn’t come with us. It can’t have been left behind.
GWEN: Well, what was in it that was so important?
JIM: You sure you haven’t seen it?
GWEN: Do you want to search the place?
JIM: It must have come. Oh, no.
MEG: What was in it?
JIM: All my presents for you. I hid them in a little carton and put it with all the other stuff so you wouldn’t notice it.
Gwen: Oh, well, it looks like you hid them a bit too well.
That’s a shame. Well, we may as well have what’s left of Christmas anyway. Margaret, Merry Christmas. These are the books you’ll need. This one’s underwear. Jim, there are your socks. That’s your fishing reel. I hope it’s the one you asked for. Merry Christmas.
JIM: I can’t believe it. How did it happen? I’m sorry.
Gwen: Now don’t throw the wrapping paper everywhere. I’m not spending the day chasing wrapping paper all over the State. Though it doesn’t look like there’ll be much this year.
JIM: I hid them in a cardboard box. I left it with the suitcases so it would just get packed, no questions asked, and you wouldn’t suspect and look inside.
Gwen: That backfired. And we go without Christmas. [To Meg] Are you going to hand yours over? Or can I go and start lunch?
Meg: Here you are. Merry Christmas.
Gwen: Thanks. Are these the ...?
Meg: Yes, the plastic mugs.
Gwen: Marvellous. Thank you. I won’t unwrap them all here. And what did you get?
JIM: Just a little cardboard box.
Gwen: I think your needle’s stuck. What have you got?
Meg: It’s that fishing book.
Gwen: Oh, that’s nice.
JIM: So big it was.
Gwen: I’m not going to stand here nattering.
Meg: I saw the carton.
JIM: Don’t worry, it doesn’t matter.
Meg: I saw it in the hall.
JIM: Drop it, sweetheart.
Meg: I saw it. It was near the telephone table, wasn’t it?
JIM: That’s right but it doesn’t matter now.
Gwen: Christmas is only for the young ones, anyway. I don’t know why we bother any more.
JIM: I was just so sure it would get packed.
Gwen: I can start cutting up the veggies, I suppose.
Meg: You saw it too, didn’t you? You saw the box sitting there.
Gwen: I did no such thing.
Meg: You must have. It was sitting next to your vanity case.
Gwen: I didn’t see any cardboard carton.
Meg: Everything else that was in the hall got packed in the car. You did see it.
Gwen: Don’t argue with me.
Meg: You were the last one out. You’re the one who shuts the door, after you’ve made sure the stove’s off and the fridge has been left open. You saw the carton and you left it there on purpose.
Gwen: I most certainly did not.
Meg: You left it behind.
JIM: I’ll make it up. I’ll take us all to the pub for lunch.
Gwen: You won’t get me into that stinking pub.
Meg: And you knew what it was. You knew what was in it and you left it there.
Gwen: I will not be accused outside my own caravan. On Christmas morning.
Meg: Why did you do that?
Gwen: I’m not on trial.
Meg: Why would you do a thing like that?
JIM: Well, it’s done now. What’s done is done.
Meg: I want to know why you did it.
Gwen: You watch your tongue, my girl.
Meg: Tell me why you deliberately left that box behind.
JIM: Don’t speak to your mother like that.
Meg: We have a game we play every year. We sneak presents home, we hide them, we wrap them up in secret even even though we can hear the sticky tape tearing and the paper rustling; we hide them in the stuff we take away, we pretend not to see them until Christmas morning even when we know they’re there and we know what’s in them because we’ve already put in our orders so there’s no waste or surprise. And Dad always hides his in a pathetic place that’s so obvious it’s a joke and we all laugh at him behind our backs but we play along! You knew what was in that box. You left it behind. I want to know why.
Gwen: Where have you picked up these ugly manners?
Meg: What were you trying to do, what did you want to gain?
Jim: It's only old presents. Slippers and your new bread knife.
Meg: Did you want to have something we'd all have to be sorry for the whole holiday? There's always something we do wrong that takes you weeks to forgive.
Gwen: Where did you learn to say all this?
Meg: You have to tell me.
Gwen: The things that are taken away on holidays always go in the proper order, so everything will fit. I can't help it if someone decides to be smart and funny and try to hide things in a little cardboard box. I wasn't going to have the whole routine upset, that we've been following all these years and that I thought was giving people a good life, though it seems I'm very wrong, for the sake of someone's joke.
Meg: But to do it deliberately!
Gwen: You're developing a nasty streak. A very nasty, cruel streak. You know what you're becoming? Snide. A nasty, snide girl. No one likes a snide girl, always arguing, always throwing a tantrum, getting your own way, answering back, correcting people, criticising, complaining, no one likes that sort of girl. Unless you count your fowlmouthed little English chum. You'll make a great pair. Throw your future away. Give it away. Throw what I have done, we have done, in our faces.
Meg: What have you done?
Jim: Let's all calm down.
Gwen: Sacrificed! Gone without. Gone through hardship so what happened to us will never happen to you. So you'll never know what we saw — never, never, never. Never see people losing jobs and never finding another one, never be without a home, never be without enough money for a decent meal, never be afraid that everything will fall apart at any second. Isn't that something, miss? Tell me? Isn't it?
Jim: Let's all relax and calm down.
Meg: I'm sorry.

Jim: Just sit down, nice and quiet.
Meg: I'm sorry.
Gwen: Why are you so cruel?
Meg: I'm sorry.
Gwen: Now my head's going to burst. I'm going to take something and then get lunch.

[She goes.]
Jim: I asked you. I begged you.
Meg: I couldn't help myself.
Jim: What good could it do? What do you want her to do now, after all this time?
Meg: Smile.

[Pause.]
Jim: When we were first courting I took her to the pictures to see Gone With the Wind. Afterwards she was so quiet, but excited, something in her head was turning over and over. She was living in this funny little house in Surry Hills then, with all her sisters, it was a pretty dirty area. The next week I went round to take her out to a dance. Everyone else had gone on some church picnic and she was home on her own so I knew we'd have a few minutes alone. I got there a bit early because I couldn't think of anything else I'd rather be doing. I went round the back and as I went past the kitchen window I could hear her talking to someone. I stopped at the back door. She was saying what old Vivien Leigh said in Gone With the Wind — just before the intermission and the war's been on and everyone's dead and the house's wrecked and the crops burnt and she's scratching around in the dirt for some old potato or cotton or something just to feed her family and she stands up against that red sky and says: 'As God is my witness, I will never be hungry again.' I laughed, not at her but I was really bowled over, she was as good as old Vivien any day. She was very embarrassed and so was I and we made a bit of a joke of it. But seeing her upset before made me remember that afternoon. 'I will never be hungry again.' It had that effect on a lot of people, that film. Old Scarlet standing in that field and wanting to rule the world.

[A clump of campers comes in.]
ALL: Merry Christmas!
JIM: And you
SECOND CAMPER: Having a good time this year?
JIM: Can’t complain.
FOURTH CAMPER: Not so close to the water this year.
JIM: No, we were beaten to it.
ALL: A lot of us were.
THIRD CAMPER: Not one regular got a spot close to the water this summer.
JIM: Oh, well.
FIRST CAMPER: We’ve been talking to a few people.
THIRD CAMPER: Going around the whole site, actually.
FIRST CAMPER: Just saying —
FOURTH CAMPER: Merry Christmas.
THIRD CAMPER: And having a quiet word with the more or less regular campers and caravanners.
FOURTH CAMPER: We’ve even thought of getting up a bit of a petition.
FIRST CAMPER: But that might be a bit drastic to start with.
SECOND CAMPER: So we’re just having a quiet word first.
THIRD CAMPER: To test the water, so to speak.
FIRST CAMPER: I’m a Rotary man myself and I’m used to a bit of —
ALL: Organising!
FIRST CAMPER: So I started mentioning a few, what you might call, grievances.
THIRD CAMPER: Not major grievances.
FOURTH CAMPER: But grievances just the same that we — the ordinary regular camper, is experiencing.
SECOND CAMPER: And since you’ve been coming here as long as anyone we felt it important to include you in this initial group.
FIRST CAMPER: With your lady wife as well.
JIM: I don’t have any grievances.
FOURTH CAMPER: A spot so far from the water, for example!
JIM: Luck of the draw, first in first —
THIRD CAMPER: But mightn’t you feel that as a camper of many years standing you might expect a spot closer to the water?
ALL: All those trees!
FIRST CAMPER: They pose a serious threat in any sort of wind.
SECOND CAMPER: A branch from one of those could put a nasty hole in your caravan.
FOURTH CAMPER: And the kiddies are always as risk from — SECOND CAMPER: — Ticks.
FIRST CAMPER: We think there should be some sort of caretaker too, to look after the grass. Also we'd like to see some solid steps down onto the beach, with handrails, to make the beach more accessible to everyone.
THIRD CAMPER: A carparking area right down on the rock platform would be a good idea too.
SECOND CAMPER: And there's been a lot of concern about the building of the lookout.
FIRST CAMPER: If we're going to turn that headland into a scenic attraction we're going to have to do a lot of work —
ALL: - To make it work!
THIRD CAMPER: There needs to be a gravel surface road up to the lookout itself.
FIRST CAMPER: As well as a decent turning circle —
SECOND CAMPER: — and a cyclone wire fence to make it perfectly safe.
THIRD CAMPER: We've got a list here of our proposals as well as a few other ideas.
FIRST CAMPER: Draining the lagoon,
SECOND CAMPER: Banning pets,
FOURTH CAMPER: And keeping the under twenties —
ALL: - out of the Saturday night dances!
FIRST CAMPER: We'll leave one with you.
SECOND CAMPER: See what you think.
THIRD CAMPER: There'll be a public meeting in the Hall the day after New Year's day.
JIM: Thank you.
SECOND CAMPER: Have a lovely Christmas Day.
FOURTH CAMPER: Big lunch on the way?
JIM: I . . . I'd say so.
[They all howl with laughter and go. Silence.]

MEG: I got a tick once. You said it would burrow through to my brain.
JIM: There was no one here that year except a few abalone divers.
MEG: And they went swimming in the nuddy. And Mum hit the roof.
JIM: Went after them with a broom.
[He folds up the list, looks at it and tears it into pieces.]

SCENE THREE

The roof of the Gold Coast Hotel.

CORAL and RICK.

CORAL: I found myself up here by accident.
RICK: As long as we're not away too long.
CORAL: I got out of the lift on the wrong floor and saw a door.
RICK: A few people saw us sneak out.
CORAL: I thought, why not? It said no entry but they didn't mean me.
RICK: I don't care what they might think.
CORAL: I came up those stairs and here I was on the roof.
RICK: Some of them like making snide remarks. Susie might get the wrong idea.
CORAL: There! Now look at the view. Aren't you sorry I got you away from that party? You can see the mountains.
RICK: Susie's a little bit suspicious, I think. I'm always just going to meet you when she wants to do something.
CORAL: And you can see the whole of the town.
RICK: She seems to know just when I'm going to see you. Maybe I get nervous and she can tell. Do I get nervous?
CORAL: It's even better up here at night. With this breeze.
RICK: Do I get nervous?
CORAL: It's like a desert in the daytime.
RICK: I want to know if I'm acting nervous whenever I meet you.
CORAL: No, of course not.
RICK: I don’t want Susie to think I’m up to anything wrong.
   I am on my honeymoon.
CORAL: Wrong?
RICK: But I get excited when I know it’s time to see you again.
CORAL: We like each other.
RICK: But I get excited.
CORAL: Look at the lights. And the cars.
RICK: And maybe she can sense that because then she sulks and gets really moody and won’t talk to me. I make an excuse to get out and then I see you and we go somewhere and all we do is talk.
CORAL: I like to talk.
RICK: Then when I go back she wants to go out and I don’t.
   I just feel like sitting and drinking. She gets upset and sulks again. I should tell her where I’m going.
CORAL: She’d hate that.
RICK: I don’t understand her. But I’m married to her.
CORAL: You’re on your honeymoon.
RICK: And if I try to make it up to her and be close when I touch her she rips her arm away and goes down to the shops or orders some food. She won’t look at me.
CORAL: Rick, don’t worry about that.
RICK: Then the phone rings and there’s no one there. I know it’s you and that makes me nervous. I bet she knows!
CORAL: But we’re here on our own.
RICK: And you pass messages to me and when I read them
   I want to walk away from whatever I’m doing and talk to you straight away. She can tell, I know she can. We won’t talk to each other any more.
CORAL: Why not?
RICK: It’s the wrong thing to do. I’m on my honeymoon. I’ve known her since school.
CORAL: You can’t stop being with me.
RICK: We’ll pack up and go somewhere else. What if her family found out? How would that look? I don’t understand why I do this. Why do you want to see me?
CORAL: You’re still alive. You’re still alive and talking and laughing.
RICK: I’m just going round the twist, I think. I do things I don’t understand. I have a job I didn’t want. I got married and I can’t remember why. I’m going to buy a house and I can’t remember why. I spend all day waiting to talk to this woman I don’t know. I’m going to end up in a straight-jacket. Everything I do is wrong. But I can’t help myself.
   I just do things and I don’t see why.
   Give me your hand.
RICK: I feel like I’m asleep all the time.
CORAL: Come into the shadows. A boy like you ...
   [They disappear into the dark.]
RICK: Like in a dream.
CORAL: Here in the corner. In the dark. A boy like you ... talk ... talk to me ... say something ... laugh ...
   [Silence for a moment. ROY comes onto the roof. He paces around, searching.]
ROY: Coral? Sweetheart? Come back to the party. Why did you run out? Come back to the party. Where are you? I followed you. I had to. I love you. Don’t hide away like this. Don’t hide from me. I brought you a drink. To celebrate. To toast the New Year. A better year. This one’ll be a better year all round. We’ll make it a better year.
   No looking back.
   [In the distance we hear cheering, singing of ‘Auld Lang Syne’, car horns.]
   There it is. You’ll miss it, quick. Nineteen sixty-eight.
CORAL: Here we are. We’re here.
RICK: Where are you going?
CORAL: We’re here. Happy New Year! Happy New Year!
   [CORAL and RICK come out of the dark.]
   We were hiding. Here we are. You’ve only got two glasses.
   That’s all right. We’ll share. Happy New Year! Drink from the glass with me. Here you are.
   [RICK takes the glass.]
CORAL: We’re all here together. Look at that sky. There’s a storm down south. Watch for the lightning.
ROY: Straighten yourself up, boy.
CORAL: Don’t nag.
ROY: Somebody’s probably looking for you.
    [RICK goes.]
    What am I going to do with you?
CORAL: You sent him away.
ROY: I’m going to have to do something. See someone.
CORAL: [a great cry] You sent him away!
ROY: Do you want me to send you to a doctor? Do you want to see a doctor? Do you want me to arrange shock treatment? I can. I looked into it. It’s very easy. I just have to take you to a doctor and they plug you in and that’s that. Look at you. Look at me. I’ll lock you up if that’s what it takes. I’ll keep you under lock and key if you insist. But you won’t behave like this. You won’t ever see another living person. You won’t bother anyone. You won’t see another living person. I’ll look after you. I’ll come and visit you.
CORAL: Don’t worry about me. You don’t have to worry about me. I’m going down to our room and I’ll have a good think about what you said. I’ll sort things out. Give me the key, darling. Is it in this pocket? Give me a little while. I’ll be as right as rain. [Leaving] I’ll gather my thoughts and turn things over and over in my mind. I’ll weigh things up and come to a decision. But don’t worry about me I’ll be fine.
    [ROY leans out over the parapet and listens to the sound of the party.]

SCENE FOUR

Storm scene.
The FAIRIES return and stage a spectacular storm, emptying the stage to the sound of Mendelssohn’s Wedding March.

JIM: Put the clothes in the car.
GWEN: Take the stove!
JIM: I’m going to try and dig a trench.
GWEN: You’ll get struck by lightning.
JIM: Stay in the car.

ACT THREE

SCENE FIVE

GWEN: Where’s my purse?
JIM: Stay in the open.
GWEN: The boat will be washed away.
JIM: Stay away from the trees.
    [JIM, GWEN and MEG are driven out by the FAIRIES, who wreak havoc with noise, light and frenzied activity.]

As the storm subsides there is darkness. The opening bars of Mendelssohn’s Dream overture are heard. The light becomes warm and intense. TOM, VIC and HARRY are discovered on a beach. She is wearing a spectacular sunhat, HARRY has a fishing reel. TOM is wearing board shorts and an Hawaiian shirt.

VIC: Where will we go today?
TOM: Round onto the rocks?
HARRY: What about going round to the next beach?
VIC: We’ve got enough food.
HARRY: The next beach?
TOM: The next beach it is.
VIC: We were lucky to miss that storm.
HARRY: We were very lucky.
VIC: I’ll bet it did some damage.
HARRY: We’d have been all right. We could have sheltered under your hat.
VIC: I love my new hat.
HARRY: We all did well out of Santa. New hat, new reel, new bathers.
VIC: Don’t get too burnt.
TOM: I’ll be fine.
VIC: Let’s go round to the next beach, then.
    [They go.]
ACT FOUR

SCENE ONE

The beach.

VIC, HARRY, JIM and GWEN.

VIC: The headland shelters the beach from the wind. You can sit round there under the rocks on the coolest day and be as hot as chips. There’s a rockpool over there that’s almost a perfect rectangle. You’d think it had been carved out by human hands. The bottom’s covered in sand. Even I go in it and I’m terrified of what might be hiding in most rockpools. At the other end there’s a cave that you can get into at low tide. It goes right in under that dairy on the hill, the one you drove past on the way in here. There’s a track from the cave right up the cliff onto the headland. At night up there you can see the lights of the town, way, way over there and the lighthouse on the island. And past that headland there’s a beach that must be, oh, five —?

HARRY: Five at least, seven —

VIC: Yes, seven miles long without a break. We walk around there for a picnic. You get halfway along and look back and there are just three lines of footprints trailing away into the distance. It’s marvellous to sit in the middle of that beach, the three of us. Sometimes when it’s really hot it’s nice to slip your bathers off in the water and just swim about like a fish.

JIM: It is a lovely spot, isn’t it?

GWEN [nods unwillingly.]

HARRY: And at the end of that beach there’s a headland, a big rock platform. In the middle there’s a carving in the rock. A man with a spear. And a big kangaroo. How old did that fellow say it was?

VIC: Five thousand years. At least.

HARRY: Five thousand years!

VIC: It is a wonderful place. And what a piece of luck you found it.

JIM: It was just chance, wasn’t it?

GWEN [nods again.]

After that storm we salvaged what we could and dried it out. We thought we’d just go straight home. There didn’t seem much point in carrying on after that washout. There doesn’t seem to be a reason to carry on with your holiday when your van’s a wreck, your boat’s smashed on the rocks and all your clothes are soaked. But we tried to save something of the holiday and spent a few nights in this motel. It was a funny place. Run by this old cheese who wore thongs all the time. They were old thongs, very loose and you could hear her, flap, flap, flap, coming down the passageway. They’d stop for a second, then start again. I suppose she was listening at a door. I don’t know what she thought people might be up to, the rooms were really tiny. We stuck it out for a couple of nights. But... we didn’t enjoy it. It wasn’t our sort of place. So we decided to head for home. We drove all day yesterday and we were getting pretty hot and tired and the girl suddenly pointed at a road sign and said we had to turn off the highway. She really wanted us to, kept insisting. So I turned the car around and drove back to the road sign and turned off down the dirt road. And when we came up over the last hill and saw the beach...

HARRY: Yes, you were very lucky.

VIC: And you got here in time for the campers’ amateur night. It’s how we end our holidays. It’s a great night. You’ll laugh till you’re sick.

HARRY: It’s a great way to end a holiday.

VIC: And it’s been a wonderful holiday this year.

CORAL enters in a flowing kaftan, dark glasses a huge straw hat over a scarf.

Look, there she is, the artist.

[She waves. CORAL goes out without seeing them.]

Isn’t she an interesting looking woman? She’s been here a few days now. She just arrived one morning, all by herself. I think she might be an artist or something, so that’s what I call her. She goes and sits on the rock ledge for hours and hours and stares into the sea. She keeps to herself, right away from us. You’ll find. It’s all right.
Gwen: [violently] The world is full of mad people. Everywhere, mad people. Why do they have to live like that? Mad people, weird, sick, sordid people. How do they bear having no worthwhile aim? I’m tired to people who don’t want to improve. I’m sick to death of people who are happy to just stay in the mud, in the swamp, just thrashing about, who don’t try for a better life, to fight their way out with their bare hands. I hate them — they’re happy in their filthy little holes like that motel — that was a nightmare! — I hate them. They’re everywhere. Like ants, swarming everywhere, no direction, no ambition —

[She stifles herself. Silence.]

Vic: I think we should go for a walk.

Gwen: No.

Vic: Us girls. Along the water.

Gwen: No.

Vic: Just a stroll. Come on.

Jim: Go on. Breathe some sea air.

[The women go. Silence for a while.]

Harry: Yes, you were lucky.

Jim: It was the girl’s idea completely. She . . . my wife, gave up. She was very upset. But the girl kept on at me. She didn’t let up until we were on that dirt road. She’s a handful.

[Pause.]

Harry: This is a wonderful country. We’re still not used to a hot Christmas.

Jim: My wife is not really an angry woman. She has high hopes.

Harry: We have no regrets. We don’t get homesick. Only once a year. We book a telephone call to our old street. In Nottingham. We get out the photo album. Remember for a while. But we have no regrets. This country . . . and often when we do think back, all we can think of is the cold, the tiny houses, the rationing, the rubble after the war. It was a rubbish dump. A lot wanted to stay and help to build again. But we didn’t want to. We felt held back. We knew why the sailors had called it the Old World. It was like living with an elderly relative, tired, cranky, who doesn’t want you to have any fun but just worry about their health all the time. Nagging you, criticising you, making you feel guilty for any enjoyment you might manage to find. No regrets. In a funny kind of way we’re happy. Even while we’re very, very sad. We have no regrets, but we have no hopes. Not any more. We might get some, but it’s unlikely, I think. Our son is very sick. It’s a cancer of the blood. He was very bad this year, we thought it was time to get ready. But he got through it. It’s called ‘in remission’. But it will come back. Every day we watch for bruises. Or to see if he’s more tired than usual. We made it into another year at least. But we don’t look forward. We haven’t given up, no, no. That would be a mistake. We don’t look back and we don’t look forward. We have this boy and we won’t have him for long. And whatever he does, that will have to be enough. The Chinese don’t believe in being too upset when someone dies. That would mean you thought they’d died too soon and what they’d done up till then didn’t amount to much. We will be sad, of course.

[Silence.]

Jim: I can’t think of anything to say.

Harry: Don’t ever say anything about it. Ever. Give me your word.

Jim: I won’t.

Harry: He doesn’t know. He won’t know. We mustn’t let him know. He must not be afraid. He must never suspect. He must look ahead even if we never do. Understand?

Jim: I promise.

Harry: We don’t tell most people. Very occasionally we run into someone who needs to know. But we don’t tell very many. Did you manage to save your fishing gear?

Jim: A few reels. The rods were broken or washed away.

Harry: What a pity.

[The women come back. They have been crying and are supporting each other.]

Vic: Here she is. I brought her back. The water’s very warm today. We had a quick paddle.

[Silence for a moment. They all look at each other.]

Harry: The boy wants some things in town for the show tonight. We'd better make tracks.

VIC: Come to the concert.
HARRY: Of course they will.
VIC: You'll have a wonderful night.
HARRY: They'll be there, won't you?
JIM: We'll be there.

[VIC and HARRY go. Silence.]

GWEN: If you want to ask me what I think or how I feel . . .
I couldn't say.

JIM: I can guess.
GWEN: What do you think of me? You must hate me? Why do you still bother? I'm sorry . . . there are all these questions I want to ask. And not just you. Everybody.

JIM: Do you want to head off?
GWEN: Go home? No.

JIM: Do you feel all right?
GWEN: I feel . . . give me a drink.

[He gets her one.]

I feel . . . no, I can't say, I can't tell you. Those two people . . .
what am I trying to say?

JIM: Here's your drink. Is your head aching?
GWEN: I'm not sure. What am I trying to say?

JIM: Don't worry yourself.

GWEN: I have to. I have to worry myself. What is it I'm trying to say?

JIM: You're over-tired.
GWEN: Don't protect me. Tell me what I'm feeling.

JIM: Amazed, sad?

GWEN: Not those things. They're so weak.

JIM: The girl would know. She'd hit the nail on the head.

[She tries to take a Bex powder.]

GWEN: I can't take this powder. I can't make it go in. I want to take it and it won't go in. I'm going to be sick.

JIM: Give it to me.
GWEN: There's a terrible taste in my mouth.

JIM: I'll get rid of it. Relax.
GWEN: I'm sorry.

JIM: You should lie down.
GWEN: No. Let's walk. Come on, down to the water. The water's so warm.

[They go.]

SCENE TWO

TOM and MEG.

TOM: Give up?
MEG: Not yet.
TOM: You won't guess.
MEG: I've seen her before.
TOM: Come on, give up.
MEG: No I've seen her. I know her.
TOM: Then who is she?
MEG: Don't tell me. I give up.

TOM: You give up?
MEG: Yes.
TOM: You can't think who she is?
MEG: I give up.
TOM: Our headmaster's wife.
MEG: Headmaster?

TOM: That's right.
MEG: No.
TOM: Yes it is.
MEG: That's incredible.
TOM: I knew who she was the second I saw her. No one else knows. She's a very good actress.
MEG: The headmaster's wife.

TOM: That's right. She's run away. She left him in this luxury hotel on New Year's Eve. Can you believe it? She hitched here.

MEG: Hitchhiked. And dressed like that?
TOM: Dressed like that.

MEG: Your parents don't recognise her?
TOM: No. I knew, though. I went straight up to her and wished her a Happy New Year. I called her name and she turned around. I called out, ‘Gotcha’ and she laughed. She told me the whole story. We’re great friends. She ran away from him because he was going to have her put away.

MEG: Is she crazy?
TOM: She has been. She’s-better now.
MEG: Really mad?
TOM: Not any more. She’s been talking to people she said.
She doesn’t feel any different to anyone else any more. I told her … well, I told her a thing or two that helped. She’s ready to get back into the swim, she says.

MEG: But she’s not a real lunatic.
TOM: She might have been for a minute or two.
MEG: And she’s in disguise.
TOM: That’s right.
MEG: She looks like a film star.
TOM: Kim Novak.
MEG: Does she?
TOM: Yeah, I picked it straight off.
MEG: Kim Novak?
TOM: What do you think of our beach?

MEG: It’s fantastic. We had a terrible argument before we came here. Mum just wanted to get back to the Pino-clean and Rinso. I kept nagging. I was being a real pain in the neck. But it would have been such a waste. We would have spent months in misery just getting over it. I wanted us to take a chance for once and see what was here.

TOM: Good on you. Do you want to sit down?
MEG: Aren’t we walking to the headland?
TOM: Eventually. Sit down.

[Pause.]
MEG: Ummm. No. Let’s keep walking.
TOM: Let’s sunbake for a while.
MEG: I don’t have a costume.
TOM: Don’t need one.
MEG: No.
TOM: What’s the problem?
MEG: Now look — TOM: Come on —

MEG: You’re frightening me.
TOM: Where was I?
MEG: You were sick.
TOM: But where was I?
MEG: You were in hospital for a while.
TOM: For a long while. What was wrong with me?
MEG: You had some infection.
TOM: Yeah, that’s what I had. An infection. Everyone knew I had some infection. I was sick. I was told the infection was running its course. That I had to fight. I did. One day a doctor came and sat on my bed and had a long talk with me. He told me that before I got completely well again I would get a lot worse, get really, really sick. And no matter how sick I got not to worry because it meant that soon I’d start to get well again. He was full of shit. He couldn’t look me in the face to say it. He stared at the cabinet next to the bed the whole time. And the nurses were really happy whenever they were near me, but when I stared them in the face, in the end they’d look away and bite their lips. When I was able to go home the doctor took me into his office and we had another talk. I had to look after myself. No strain, no dangerous activity. Keep my spirits up. Then he went very quiet, leant over the desk, practically whispering how if I knew a girl it’d be good for me to do it, to try it. ‘It’, he kept calling it. It, it. I put him on the spot. What? Name it. Give it a name. He cleared his throat. ‘Sexual intercourse’. But if I was worried about going all the way I could experiment with mutual masturbation. Know what that is?
MEG: I think it’s pretty clear.
TOM: I nearly spat in his face. You shocked?
MEG: I don’t know.
TOM: So how about it? Help me. I’m going to get sick again.
And I won’t get better. Your parents won’t find out.
MEG: Will yours?
TOM: They don’t know. That I know. They want me to think I’m going to be as right as rain. They mustn’t find out. I know. They mustn’t even suspect, the poor bastards. And you won’t fill them in.
MEG: OK.
TOM: Will you?

MEG: OK.
TOM: No, come on.
MEG: I give you my word.
TOM: Do you?
MEG: You have my word.
TOM: Now ... what do you say?
MEG: I can’t.
[Silence.]
I’m sorry.
TOM: I’m a real creep, aren’t I?
MEG: It’s just that ... well ... you’re a bit skinny for me.
[Pause.]
TOM: I could build myself up.
MEG: Well ...
TOM: Yes. I could build myself up. Do a Charles Atlas course. Would that help?
MEG: It might.
TOM: I’ll do it.
MEG: Are you really as sick as that?
TOM: Not today, not today.
MEG: If you could have seen your face before. Are you afraid?
TOM: You coming to the concert tonight?
MEG: Will I get in?
TOM: Front row. You won’t let them find out, will you?
MEG: I swear.
TOM: Go on then, swear.
MEG: Oh ... blast! I’ll see you at the concert.
[She goes.]
TOM: Hey!
[She stops. He starts to do push ups, laughing. She watches him. When he looks up again she’s gone. He lies on his back and covers his face with his hands, lies there for a moment. CORAL comes in with an armful of wood.]
CORAL: Will this be enough?
TOM: For kindling.
CORAL: Oh. I’m not a pyromaniac, so I wasn’t sure how much you’ll need.
TOM: Come on, we’ll make a real effort. Then you’ve got lines to learn.
CORAL: I’ll bet Kim Novak has more than an afternoon to get into a part. You’re not feeling ... sick or anything?

Tired?

TOM: No. Come on.

[They go.]

SCENE THREE

The amateur night. MC appears in a spot. He is dressed as a hula girl. He is carrying a ukelele.

MC: What did Tarzan say when he saw the elephants coming?

Eh? ‘Here come the elephants!’ How do you fit four elephants in a Mini Minor? Easy. Two in the front and two in the back. Here’s a trick one. What did Tarzan say when he saw the elephants coming with sunglasses on?

VIC: ‘Here come the elephants!’

MC: No, he didn’t say anything ‘cos he didn’t recognise them. Ha ha ha. Now — why did the elephants cross the road? Give up? It was the chook’s day off. Ha ha ha.

[He begins to play the ukelele.]

Pearly shells, by the ocean,

Lying in the sun, covering the shore.

When I see them, my heart tells me that I love you

More than all those little pearly shells.

For every grain of sand upon the shore

I’ve got a kiss for you.

And I’ve got more left over than each star

That twinkles in the blue.

Pearly shells, by the ocean etc.

Don’t applaud just throw money, ha ha ha. Now to round off the concert tonight we’ve got something a little different from what we usually have, but one year without hokey pokey won’t kill you, will it? Will it?

ALL: Noooo.

MC: And Alice Macfaddyn had that nasty tussle with the blue-bottle so she’s not up to singing ‘Vilia’ for us, so settle back, relax, kick off your shoes as two of our fellow holiday-makers present a heart warming drama they’ve knocked together themselves entitled The Stranger on the Shore. OK, kids.

[TOM appears before the curtain. He is wearing a sailor’s cap.]

TOM: There was once this sailor who was watching the stars one night, a few miles off the Cape of Good Hope. He’d had too much rum that night and he lost his balance. ‘I’m falling, I’m falling. What is this cold wetness that envelopes me? It is the sea. I can see my life flashing past my eyes.

I’m drowning, I’m drowning. Down I go. To the bottom.’

So he drowned. And when he got to heaven he was so piss ... drunk they wouldn’t let him in. He was turned away at the door. ‘Now I shall have to wander the high seas forever and forever roam the docks until I, alone. Endless torture.’ One night as he was wandering around the port of Rotterdam —

[CORAL makes ship noises on a bottle.]

... he met this strange woman.

[CORAL’s leg appears through the curtain, then her face.]

CORAL: [with American accent] ‘Good evening, What a beautiful night. You look lonely.’

JIM: When’s the punchline?

TOM: Do you mind? We’re trying to do a play.

JIM: Sorry.

TOM: Thanks. Go on.

CORAL: ‘You look lonely. Let’s take a walk together.’

TOM: ‘Let me buy you a drink, What’ll you have?’

CORAL: ‘Gin. No ice.’

TOM: So they fell in love almost at once.

[They embrace passionately. She disappears behind the curtain.]

CORAL: ‘See ya later.’

TOM: ‘But what shall I do? I am a ghost and she a mortal woman with a strange power over me. I shall leave this place. I will take a tramp steamer to Tierra del Fuego.’

But as the ship was leaving the dock ...

[CORAL’S face appears, grief stricken. She waves a handkerchief and wails.]

‘Get back, get back.’
[A splash.]
She has thrown herself into the water and is swimming after the ship.
[Coral disappears.]
'She will surely perish.' But just then the god of the sea took pity on her and turned her into — [The curtain opens to reveal Coral with her legs concealed by a towel in the appropriate shape.]
... a mermaid. So she wouldn't drown.
Coral: 'Alas, alas, I have no legs; but at least I can follow my beloved whither he will sail. But it is so cold here on the silent bottom of the deep, and so lonely. I dwell with the denizens of the ocean, the whales, the stingrays, the giant clams and the slow moving coelacanth.'
Jim: The which?
Coral: Coelacanth. It's prehistoric. 'Forever in the darkness of the sea I follow my beloved. How I yearn for the land, the sky, the grass, but to walk causes me terrible pain in my nether regions. So far from home, swimming after my ghostly lover.'
Tom: Whenever they met dockside she tried to walk to him but cried out in great pain.
Coral: 'Alas!'
[She swoons.]
Tom: Finally the god of the sea took pity on them. He gave the sailor one wish. Whatever he wanted he could have.
'What shall I do? Return to human life again? Or enter heaven and end this endless wandering torture? No. It is my love who must be saved. She must return to dry land.
Better I am unhappy for all eternity than she suffer another moment.' So the sailor wished that his love walk again.
The god was totally amazed but granted his wish.
[He removes the towel. Coral contemplates her legs a moment then covers them with her kaftan.]
Coral: 'Oh, don't send me back. I want to follow you wherever you go.'
Tom: 'You don't belong here. You must return to your own world and your own people. You must no longer dwell with the whales, the stingrays, the giant clams and the slow moving coelacanth. It's not good for you. Go back to the land, the grass, the sand.'
Coral: 'I cannot walk. I am afraid.'
Tom: 'I will show you how.'
[He lifts her and holds her as she takes a step forward, then another, then another.]
Coral: 'I'm walking.
[Mendelssohn's Nocturne is heard.]
I'm walking, I'm walking.' [In her own voice] I'm walking,
I'm walking, I'm walking.
[As she disappears offstage she turns and waves to Tom, who waves back. They all watch her go. He picks up the towel, buries his face in it a moment then takes a bow. The applause is led thunderously by Gwen. Vic goes and looks where Tom and Coral have gone. There is a great red glow offstage.] Vic: They've lit a bonfire on the beach. Look! It's like when the Armada was coming.
[They all stand and watch the fire for a moment, then slowly walk off towards it. Vic and Harry remain and leave the stage in another direction.]
ACT FIVE

SCENE ONE

As the Nocturne continues to play, ROY comes on. He looks forlorn, alone. He looks around vacantly. In another part of the stage MEG carries in the suitcases. GWEN staggers in with more things. MEG takes them from her and goes out. GWEN turns to go but stops. JIM comes in with the cardboard carton. He takes out a parcel and hands it to her. She unwraps it. It is a pair of slippers. She looks at them, then at him and walks away, a bit overcome. JIM goes to her and they embrace. CORAL comes in carrying her hat upside down. She approaches ROY cautiously. When he sees her he is confused. She approaches him and offers him the hat. He takes it. She digs her hand into the crown of the hat and lifts out a handful of shells. She lets them run through her fingers. She lifts them out again. ROY leans towards them and buries his face in the shells in CORAL’s hands. She lets them go again and picks them up. He kisses the shells and her hands. JIM and GWEN have left the stage. MEG comes in and picks up the carton and takes it off. As ROY and CORAL leave MISS LATROBE comes on. The light becomes bright, summery, morning.

SCENE TWO

The schoolyard.
MISS LATROBE looks about her at the morning. The other actors come in. MISS LATROBE hands out books. They read the first scene of King Lear down to the entrance of the king. MISS LATROBE stops them.

MISS LATROBE: I thought I’d bring you all out here under the trees to read this, in my opinion, Shakespeare’s greatest tragedy. Now there are many who would give Hamlet pride of place, but it is the struggle between man and nature, as well as between man and man, and between man and himself that make this, for me, his masterwork. And it is the power of nature, its participation in the drama that made me bring you all outside to commence work on your text for this year. Now settle down [as they sit in a circle] and we’ll continue reading King Lear by William Shakespeare. Tom, you’re our own Chips Rafferty, why don’t you go on reading? Pick it up at the King’s opening speech.

TOM: ‘Meantime we shall express our darker purpose. Give me the map there. Know that we have divided In three our kingdom; and ’tis our fast intent To shake all cares and business from our age, Conferring them on younger strengths, while we Unburden’d crawl toward death.’ [They remain still as the lights fade, the closing bars of Mendelssohn’s music are heard. Beyond them, as in a dream, the lights play on the blue horizon and the sea.]

THE END

The production of Away by the Sydney Theatre Company in June 1992 was directed by the playwright and an alternative ending was performed. Readers interested in the new scene can send a self-addressed envelope to Currency Press, P.O. Box 452, Paddington, 2021. HSC STUDENTS PLEASE NOTE: the alternative ending is not part of the HSC examination.
